DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C.

112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 7, 10-11 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

With regards to claims 7, 10-11, applicant is claiming a standard without indicating the year of the standard. These claims are indefinite because standards have different version for a particular year. The specification fails to indicate the year of the IEEE 1394 or the IEC 61883 standard.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Yamazaki(6,205,145)

With regards to claim 1, Yamazaki teaches a method for managing the connection of a plurality of device which are point-to-point connected by a digital interface, the method comprising:

a second device(Fig. 4, B-ISDN/converter), which establishes a point to point connection between an arbitrary first device(ATM terminal) and another device(Fig. 4, the converter sets up point-to-point call), receiving a connection release request command requesting the second device to break the point to point connection from the first device(converter receives a release message from the ATM terminal); the second device breaking the point to point connection in response to the connection release request command.(the converter initiates connection release by forwarding the REL and the REL COM commands), wherein the point-to-point connection is defined by an output plug of the first device, and input plug of the another device and a channel between the output plug and input plug(the plugs are considered interfaces and are present in both terminals in Fig. 4, and the point to point connect is between these two terminals via their interfaces)

Claim 8 is rejected because the first device sends said connection release request command to the second device(atm terminal sends REL command to converter)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 9 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yamazaki(6,205,145) in view of Goto et al.(6,564,266)

With regards to claim 9 Yamazaki fails to teach said other device sending a connection release request command to the second device. However in Yamazaki the ATM sends this request. Goto teaches this capability in Fig. 9. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine Yamazaki with Goto for the purpose of achieving connection release from either terminal. The motivation being that with the connection release capability in the other terminal, both terminals could end the connection should the need arise. For example the other terminal may be in a state of congestion hence by releasing the connection the AM terminal could cease sending data thus saving bandwidth.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-7 are allowed.
